I'm not sure how much time passed during this process of Jake trying to eat me alive. Long enough for me to think that this had to be the toughest battle of my life and then one minute after, two. It seemed like I was pleading with Jake to let me go because I really, really didn't want to be in his space any longer than was necessary. I don't know if it was two or three minutes, but the waiting was unbearable. Finally, the silence that followed was loud. I was too stunned by the events of this day to even comprehend the silence. It took a moment to register that my hand was still on Jake's shoulder. Jake's skin was soft. I reached up and touched him again. He was warm. He wasn't just warm, but he was breathing, too. I didn't tell him I was still there. I was startled by the weight of him as I moved my hand back to the center of his body. It was like he'd growled at me before and I didn't want to give him the chance to repeat the performance. I buried myself back into his shoulder as I ran my hands up his back. He leaned into me. "It's okay. I'
