I've been using Photoshop for ten years, but I still find myself confused about its basic features — and occasionally I make mistakes that make me want to scream. I've had everything from simple photo retouching to large-scale projects to production-level work. I've also gotten confused numerous times, so I've recorded this video series to teach and help you navigate through the Photoshop interface and use its tools.

Some of these tutorials will also use Paint Shop Pro, which is a free, easy to use alternative to Photoshop that is just as powerful. Visit the series' video page to view the other videos in the series. These are best viewed in the background of your browser. How to open Photoshop. You'll likely be using Photoshop CS5 on Windows, but many tutorials work on previous versions as well. For beginners, I recommend using Photoshop CS5 on a PC. Start Photoshop. There are two ways to open Photoshop: 1. Open Photoshop from Windows. Double click on the Photoshop icon to start the application. You'll see the File Browser window with the Photoshop disc icon. If you're using Photoshop CS5, you'll see three text files in your Photoshop disc icon. Double-click on the first one to start the application. If you're using Photoshop CS6 or later, you'll see the Photoshop icon. The single icon is the PSD open file. Click on the icon to start the application. 2. Open Photoshop from

Mac. From the Apple menu, choose Applications > Adobe Photoshop. If you're using Photoshop CS6 or later, you'll see the icon for Photoshop (the PSD open file). If you're on Photoshop CS4 or CS5, you'll see Photoshop CS5 (or CS4). Click on the icon to start the application. How to install Photoshop. 1. Go to www.adobe.com to download a DVD or USB Flash drive with Photoshop installed. 2. When you've downloaded the image, click on "Install," select your installation option and click "OK." 3. Find Photoshop in your computer's hard drive. Depending on your operating system, Photoshop should appear in your hard drive. If it doesn't, use the search function in your operating system to search for Photoshop. 4. Double-click on the Photoshop icon on your desktop to launch Photoshop. If you use Photoshop CS6 or

Wordpress GIF Animation Nibbles Background How to Use Photoshop to create a GIF Animation Step 1: Create or Find the GIF File Open Photoshop and open the desired GIF file. To import the GIF file, click File > Import > From Files > GIF. Once you have imported the GIF, you will see a green check mark beside the files name. You can also drag and drop any GIF file to import it. You may also want to change the animation duration. If you want the animation to run for 10 seconds, then enter 10 into the Duration boxes. Step 2: Edit the Animation Click on the GIF and a window will be opened which allows you to edit the animation. Edit the frames for the animation by selecting the Frame Options menu from the File menu. Click on each frame to edit its settings. You can choose the color and transparency of each frame in the Frame Options menu. Select the images you want to appear in the animation using the Selection tool or by using the Magic Wand tool to create a selection. Click on the lock symbol beside the frame to lock the frame in place and prevent it from moving. You can create more than one layer to edit frames individually. However, after a certain number of frames, you will need to use the Timeline options to create new layers to edit the frames. To create a new layer, click on the plus sign at the top of the Layers panel. You can use layers to edit frames individually and also hide them when you are finished. To do so, click on the lock symbol beside a frame. After creating the frames, you can speed up or slow down the animation by dragging the time bar. Step 3: Add Effects You can add some cool effects to the animation like a Bloom effect, Color Twist or the Quick Effects filters. For a Bloom effect, click on the Filter gallery 05a79cecff

THE PEOPLE'S ALMANAC AND GUIDE TO CHOOSING A HOME UNIT West Hartford's Arts & Music Festival on Post Road is back for its 13th year and having a joyous time. The festival is promoted by the West Hartford Arts Council, a local resident-based not-for-profit organization that runs the festival and 10 others in the state. The festival takes place Friday and Saturday, July 21-22. A guided bus tour is scheduled for each day at 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Taking in the vibrant street scene, the event features music, food and beverages from more than 200 diverse vendors, not to mention all kinds of arts, crafts and items for sale. So how do you choose where to go first? You might pick your favorite vendors or your favorite sights, or you can opt to follow a tour group. The tours start and end at the West Hartford High School campus, 4649 Post Road. A tour schedule is on the festival website, westhartfordarts.org. Click here to visit the website. Tours and information are free. And for a list of prices and vendors, click here. Downtown West Hartford is jumping with galleries and shops by John Pektarz, dwnharts.org Downtown West Hartford has come a long way since I first became a resident in 1983. Here are a few of my impressions of the area: It's one of the most vibrant parts of the city. The downtown is alive with music, commerce and people. You can shop and take in the local sights and dine in a variety of restaurants and restaurants. Over the years, old buildings have been restored and historic signs have been replaced. I've noticed an abundance of local restaurants and bars. What's not to like about that? It's also a place where you can drive around and check out the new parking lots, gardens and exciting new buildings. The Main Street Bridge over West Broad Street is the best place to start, and the Ledge Park Cafe on that street offers the best breakfast in town. Continue south on Post Road and you're on Thayer Road, which is lined with shops. If you want something more peaceful, head down Second Street to St. Mary's Church, built in 1826. Then, just a few miles further on is Assembly Row, formerly known as Colt's
